

Students taste life on the land

Connor Sanguez keeps a watchful eye over the Labrador tea at culture camp. The students were hands-on when it came to preparing their meals throughout the day.

Rhonda Grossetete, left, Connor Sanguez, Holly Norwegian, Kyra Sanguez, Zaida Sanguez, Kent Bratton and Alisha Grossetete paddle Jean Marie River as part of culture camp last month.

Northern News Services
Ttheke'ehdeli/Jean Marie River

Students at Louie Norwegian School took part in culture camp where Jackfish Creek meets the Jean Marie River from Sept. 19 to 23.

The 10 students went fishing, canoeing, learned to set snares and cooked everything from pizza in outdoor ovens to grilled cheese sandwiches over homemade grills.

Both Donald Kuptana and Peter Daniels visited the camp to demonstrate traditional Northern games and Dene games, which were a

CAMP Feature

by Brooke Suwala

big hit with students.

Participants also took part in geocaching, a game that involves locating hidden objects with GPS devices.

The camp was organized by both the school and the Jean Marie River band office.

— text by Nathalie Heiberg-Harrison

Kyra Sanguez blows a kiss with cattail at culture camp last month.

Holly Norwegian and Alisha Grossetete cuddle up in their sleeping bags at culture camp, which was held where Jackfish Creek meets the Jean Marie River. All 10 students from Louie Norwegian School took part throughout the week, some staying the night and others visiting for the day.